The Children's Heart Disease Trust, an Edinburgh based charity, has agreed to fund a sponsorship scheme for overseas cardiologists and cardiac surgeons. The scheme will be run from the British Congenital Cardiac Association (BCCA) platform. The charity will support applicants to spend up to four weeks visiting clinical centres in the UK to develop their knowledge and skills. A sum of up to £5000 per annum will be made available, initially for five consecutive years. Recipients of this award will be encouraged to attend the Annual meeting of the BCCA during their time in the UK. Any UK based consultant cardiologist or cardiac surgeon, who is a member of the BCCA, will be eligible to sponsor a consultant level doctor from overseas.
